A portal will generally:

1. allow a single user authentication and authorization step at the initial point of contact to be applied to other entities within the portal;

2. allow multiple sources of information (“channels”) to be displayed on a single screen;

3. provide personalization of channels, based on each user’s characteristics;

4. allow user personalization of the look-and-feel of the interface;

5. provide a consistent style of access to diverse information sources, including legacy applications;

6. facilitate transaction processing as well as simple data access.

Our Development Process

First Conversations with Developers
Although portal developers were interested in project at this time our participation was put on hold due to impending changeover in portal management tool.

Late 2014

Spring 2018
Develop Statement of Purpose and Wireframe for Content
Reconnect with developers. They are excited to work on this and provide us with a "page" in the portal. Write statement of purpose, identify project as having two phases, and engage in card sorting and wireframe development.

Summer & Fall 2018
Prototyping of Phase One
Develop content in LibGuides that we push to the portal. Test function and design.

January 2019
Go Live with Phase One
After communicating with internal constituents and getting final go ahead site will go live and development of phase two will go into effect.
Statement of Purpose

“The aim and scope of the project is to strategically position dynamic, responsive information about research services in a venue with which students frequently interact. It is not to reproduce the Libraries’ website or LibGuides.”

Research Roadmap

Featured Rotating Content
Thank you - welcome to know - it’s midsummer
Meet us! - print a library

Topic Services
- Book a study room
- Akron Public Library loan
Phase One Wireframe

Each content area here will become a “box” on a page for the Libraries in the Portal.
Why LibGuides?

- Individual LibGuides boxes can map to a box in the Portal
- Each box is a clean slate (no system-wide headers or navigation)
- Automated updates of some content with widgets
- Direct control of box content
- Ability to assign content developers to project and set permissions
Prototyping & Management in LibGuides
Ask a Librarian

Librarians can help you to develop a topic, search for information, and plan out next steps for your research.

Ask a question or schedule an appointment:

Video Guide →
A history major in their second year at UVM will be introduced to methods for working with primary and secondary sources.

In the Libraries channel, they could see:

- Digitized newspaper collections
- Tutorials on how to search for primary material in the Libraries catalog
- Featured collections in the Silver Special Collections Library
- Information on Chicago citation style
A second-year nursing major who is expected to develop a research topic might see on their MyUVM homepage throughout the semester:

- Our Engaging with Information tutorial
- Libraries Research Guides for Nursing
- Links to PubMed or CINAHL and search guides to these resources
- APA citation help
Libraries Channel: For a Graduate Student

A graduate student about to begin their first semester at UVM might see on their MyUVM homepage:

- Citation management software
- Interlibrary Loan and Document Delivery
- Subject librarian contact and scheduling information
